First group achieves integrity qualification

UMD Professional is celebrating the success of the first group of dentists and managers to achieve the Institute of Leadership and Management's Level 5 Certificate in Leading with Integrity.

The successful candidates, who attended workshops in London and Leeds before taking the qualification, are Susan Taggart of Wakefield Community Dental Service, Mid Yorkshire NHS Trust, Joanna Hobson of Primley Park Dentistry, Karina Hollmann-Adly of Goldsworth Road Dental Centre, Asha Ellis of Ellis Dental Practice and Joanne Nesbit of Springfield Road Dental Practice.

The qualification was developed by the ILM and Cass Business School, and UMD Professional's course provides a foundation in leadership and management in dentistry with particular focus on the importance of culture, values, and integrity.

Fiona Stuart-Wilson, Director of UMD Professional, said: 'With leadership issues to the fore in dentistry today, and with this subject very much on the agenda as part of regulation, we are delighted that this group has taken the lead in embarking on this course and achieving the qualification.'
