

Supplementary Figure 5 Synthetic siRNA accomplishes sequence-specific RNAi of an exogenous target in mice. Female BALB/c mice were imaged over two weeks post-injection and total luciferase signals were integrated and quantified. The average of three or more replicate mice is presented and error bars represent one standard deviation. [This is the raw data that is presented in Figure 2b, presented here without further normalization.]