Brushtox aid to Kosovo

Sixty eight thousand bottles of the original formulation of Brushtox Antiseptic have been donated to the Red Cross by Dentox Ltd and will be taken to Kosovo by doctors setting up field hospitals in the Macedonian refugee camps.

Mary Neal, Managing Director of Dentox Ltd, said 'We had re-formulated Brushtox toothbrush antiseptic and had a large quantity of the previous formulation in the warehouse. Being 70% surgical spirit it makes an excellent all-round medical disinfectant'.

DDU study

In the latest edition of The Journal of the Dental Defence Union, a survey of complaints reported to the DDU between 1996 and 1998 shows that 20% of complaints made against dentists under the age of 30 relate to endodontic treatment. This compares with only 11% of complaints against dentists in this age group relating to root canal treatment for dentists of all ages.

The study also found that 18% of complaints against dentists in this age group arose from restorative treatment and 15% from exodontia.

Smiles and away the best launch ever

The launch of National Smile Week in London's Regent's Park was organised by sonic toothbrush manufacturer Sonicare.

It started with an early morning appearance on Sky News by Dr Edward Lynch of the Royal London hospital, continuing with Capital, Capital Gold and Virgin radio stations heralding the launch in their news bulletins. Meanwhile, various BDHF-selected dentists informed listeners about the need for good oral health over the air waves.

Looks fine Microbrush

Microbrush Corporation announces that their new Microbrush Plus applicators are now available in either regular size for normal use, or fine size for more precise application of material.

Both applicator sizes come with a patented, bending shaft and the Microbrush Plus handle is 5 1/2 inch longer and thicker for better control when wearing rubber gloves.

Applicators are made with small, non-linting, non-absorbent fibres and the solution is held in suspension between the fibres creating a non-dripping sphere that stays in place, even when held upside down. Solutions can be placed as small as 1/8 of a drop exactly where needed.

Bye bye bleach

Rembrandt Dazzling White from Den-Mat, the at-home whitening toothpaste and bleaching gel in one, is now available in the UK.

Dentists can offer Dazzling White to those patients who, for whatever reason, choose not to have their teeth professionally bleached but would like a whiter, brighter smile. Den-Mat say that brushing twice daily with Rembrandt Dazzling White instead of ordinary toothpaste whitens patients' teeth by several shades in just two weeks.

The fluoride, Citroxain and peroxide ingredients also work to prevent cavities and improve the overall health of the teeth and gums.
