ACMG Career Center: Are your skills in demand?

Just like other facets of today's business environment, the job market is constantly evolving. And just like in business, success depends on knowing your market, as well as your strengths and weaknesses. What's hot in your profession and what's not? Are you trained in the most up to date software? Are you qualified in new techniques? Do you know where the industry is headed?

These are the kinds of question that can be answered by keeping an eye on the jobs posted on ACMG Career Center. Browsing through the requirements in different job listings is a great way to see which specific skill sets and what types of experience employers are actually looking for right now.

In addition to the free and confidential resume posting, easy job application and the ability to save and email job listings, using ACMG Career Center's simple job search function can help you keep your ear to the ground when it comes to who's hiring and what positions are most in demand.

Even if you're not actively looking for a new job, it makes sense to check out ACMG Career Center and post your resume, because you never know what opportunities may be out there looking for you. Visit <http://careers.acmg.net> today to post your resume and find out what employers in your industry are looking for.

Dues Notices for 2008: Coming Soon

Dues notices for 2008 will be sent to all members in September 2007. Dues are payable by January 1, 2008. All members with unpaid 2008 dues will be required to pay for the current year prior to registering for the 2008 Annual Clinical Genetics Meeting.

Please note that dues notices will be sent electronically to all members. Should you need a paper copy for your institution, you will be able to print a dues invoice from the ACMG website.

Donate to the ACMG Foundation Year Round

Donations to the ACMG Foundation can be made year round. The American College of Medical Genetics Foundation is a 501 (c)(3) not-for-profit organization. Gifts and grants from individuals, foundations and corporations are fully tax-deductible according to law. Such contributions enable the educational activities of the American College of Medical Genetics, which strives to fulfill the medical genetics needs in human health, improving the quality of life for all. For more information about the ACMG Foundation, please write or call: ACMGF, 9650 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20814; Phone: 301-634-7127.
