

View a range of outstanding systems

At this year's British Orthodontic Conference (BOC), the Straumann Group is delighted to be displaying their range of outstanding systems to delegates.

Expect to see ClearCorrect displayed at this year's event. This premier aligner utilises ClearQuartz tri-layer material for remarkable resilience and stain-resistance. Plus, with a smooth, un-scalloped trimline that extends past the gingival margin, these clear aligners are over 2.5x more retentive than scalloped aligners. This system is customisable to suit a range of patient needs, with specialised options including cut-outs for elastics, button cut-outs and bite ramps, making ClearCorrect your ideal partner in orthodontics.

Not only that, the Straumann Group will showcase their portfolio of intraoral scanners, so delegates can see all of the impressive models in person. Make sure you save the date to avoid missing out on this exciting opportunity.

Remember, the BOC will be taking place at the ICC in Birmingham, 15–17 September 2022.

Combat airborne transmission

Novaerus air disinfection units from Eschmann are a trusted solution for reducing airborne pathogens, surface bacteria, infections, odours and antibiotic use.

Using patented NanoStrike technology, the Novaerus units are scientifically proven to safely and effectively kill and deactivate harmful airborne microorganisms at the DNA level, actively preventing them from reproducing. With no harmful by-products, Novaerus technology is safe for continued 24/7 use around even the most vulnerable. Depending on the size of the room, pathogens are destroyed in an instant and a full air cycle of a space is achieved in as little as one hour. Not only this, the units are easy to install with no maintenance, replacement filters or components.

Supporting Income Protection Awareness Week

As the leading income protection provider for the dental profession, Dentists' Provident are supporting this year's Income Protection Awareness Week (IPAW) running from 19–23 September 2022.

With more than 150 million working days lost in the UK due to sickness absence in 2021 and with only 6% of adults in the UK having income protection,¹ the Income Protection Task Force (IPTF) is running an awareness campaign to highlight the importance of people being insured against the risk of not being able to work after becoming ill or getting injured.

The campaign kickstarted with '100 days to go' and it's #LetsTalkIP social campaign leading up to Income Protection Awareness Week. It's the second time the awareness week will be run and will include a range of insightful materials and useful information to help raise awareness of the importance of having income protection insurance.

An income protection insurance plan can help you maintain your lifestyle without depleting your savings, relying on your family or the welfare state for financial support, as it will provide you with a regular payment to help replace the income you lose.

The IPTF's members are businesses from across the financial services industry, involved in income protection insurance in the UK. Dentists' Provident along with more than 30 other businesses from across the insurance industry are supporting the IPTF's mission to raise awareness of the value of income protection through the campaign.

On Monday 19 September, the awareness week starts with a webinar about the importance of income protection, with the rest of the week being more targeted at financial and specialist advisors. You can find our more or sign up here: www.iptf.co.uk/income-protection-awareness-week/.
