At the forefront of excellence in dentistry

The Bio-Emulation Symposium, held on 4 and 5 November in the vibrant city of Sofia, Bulgaria, brought together leading dentists, dental technicians, and industry professionals to explore cutting-edge trends in the field of dentistry.

Hosted by the Bio-Emulation team and proudly sponsored by GC Europe, this event set the stage for ground-breaking discussions and collaborations.

The symposium was a resounding success with over 500 attendees from 32 countries. The 11 lecturers all showed a high level in dentistry and dental technology, which they also showcased in the hands-on workshops and demos. In total, ten lectures and eight workshops were given.

GC Europe, the official sponsor of the symposium, played a pivotal role in enabling this gathering of brilliant minds and could delight 20 participants with a wildcard to the conference that was offered in advance.

The symposium included presentations, workshops, and a students' panel with demonstrations, covering a wide range of topics for dentists as well as technicians, fostering interdisciplinary collaboration that promises to drive treatment optimisation.
