

Thank you to all of our reviewers in 2021

5514 individual reviewers contributed to the peer review process at Communications Biology in 2021. We acknowledge and thank each of them here.

Many of us thought—or at least hoped—that the COVID-19 pandemic would be far behind us by 2022. Unfortunately, as we all know, this hasn't been the case. We continue to live with a huge amount of uncertainty and unpredictable disturbances to our normal schedules. Yet, in the face of all the challenges imposed by the pandemic, science marches on. Just over 3100 manuscripts were submitted to Communications Biology in 2021 and 58% of those were sent for external review. In total, we received 7877 review reports, including both new submissions and revised manuscripts. We are extremely grateful to the more than 5000 individual reviewers who volunteered their time and expertise to help evaluate these manuscripts and thus contributed to the advancement of science beyond their own personal research programs.

“Yet, in the face of all the challenges imposed by the pandemic, science marches on.”

Reviewers of the Month

Each month our editors select one of the many excellent reviewers we have worked with at any point in the past to be featured as Reviewer of the Month. Reviewers are selected who have provided exceptional advice to authors and/or editors and who the editors feel went above and beyond in their peer review duty. To learn more about our Reviewers of the Month, please see our website.
