ORTHODONTICS WHILE YOU SLEEP

Aerodentis turns night time into orthodontic treatment time. For just ten hours a day and with no metal braces or plastic aligners, patients of all ages can undergo proven and effective physiological orthodontic treatment.

The Aerodentis system is a treatment paradigm for straightening teeth based on over three decades of medical research. Suitable for all ages, it addresses many of the significant shortcomings of existing orthodontic treatment methods, most notably conventional braces and clear aligners. Intended for use at night while sleeping, the Aerodentis treatment system gives patients complete freedom from any orthodontic device during the day.

The Aerodentis system relies on the same biomechanical principles that are the basis of traditional orthodontic treatment. It applies safe, controlled pulsed pneumatic force on the buccal and/or lingual surfaces of the teeth being treated by inflating the balloon to incrementally reposition the teeth to the desired, predetermined position. The level of force and rate of cyclical pulsation is completely programmable with accurate digital electronic control and predictability for a healthy aesthetic and orthodontic outcome.
