

Many congratulations to Light Science & Applications on reaching its 10th anniversary.

I have enjoyed interacting with many of its editors and staff and wish you continued success in the future. We have an old proverb in English that says "mighty oaks from little acorns grow" which means that great, strong accomplishments can originate from small humble beginnings given time and I think that is exactly the case here. LSA is now a mighty oak in the forest of optics journals.

Oliver Graydon
Chief Editor Nature Photonics